

Figure 1. The Aurelia aurita life cycle. Adult medusae (A) release eggs and sperm to form planula larvae (B) that develop into benthic polyps (C). These polyps can form buds that reproduce asexually or form transverse segments and stacking (D). Stacked polyps undergo strobilation to produce juvenile ephyra (E) that grow into adult medusae.